Eastern Olivaceous Warbler

Strong prevailing north-easterly winds for the first three days made conditions quite cold and difficult for bird-watching but had the advantage of holding migrants up on the island with a great variety of species on show, but none in great numbers. From day four the wind began to ease, the temperature began to rise and numbers of migrant species began to reduce. An influx of warblers was reported on day five, which included Blackcap, Common and Lesser Whitethroats, Barred, Garden, Wood and Willow Warblers. Flycatchers were in good supply for most of the week but large migrant "falls" passed the island by. The group tally of 169 species was the best ever for Birdfinders, which reflected the high quality of birding skills within the group, especially that of Jack and Richard.

Day 1: Flight from Gatwick to Mytilini and transfer to hotel.

Day 2: During a long walk in the general area of Skala Kallonis we amassed a creditable list of 90+ species, which set the holiday off on a high note and emphasized the quality of birding on the island. Excellent views of Collared Pratincole and Greater Short-toed Lark were had along the East River. Two Stone Curlews on the banks of the West River, a stunning male Montagu's Harrier, a tally of seven tern species, a Collared Flycatcher on the track between Skala Kallonis and the East River gave us a top quality tally for our first full day.

Day 3: A juvenile Dalmatian Pelican on the salt pans and good views (albeit brief) of Ortolan Bunting were overshadowed by Krüper's Nuthatch and a Black Kite on day three.

Day 4: An early start found us at the picturesque Inland Lake where both Spotted and Little Crake were recorded along with Moustached Warbler and Black-crowned Night-heron. The rest of the day was spent traveling to Sigri via Ipsolou where we added some of the island's specialties such as Isabelline Wheatear, Cretzschmar's and Cinereous Buntings, Western Rock Nuthatch and Rock Sparrow. The highlight in Sigri was the Semi-collared Flycatcher at the upper Faneromeni Ford.

Day 5: Saw us heading to the north coast with visits to Petra, Molivos and a scary drive along the dirt track to Skala Sikaminias culminating with inch perfect driving along the quayside. That day we saw Rüppell's Warbler, a distant European Roller and Audouin's Gull.

Day 6: The highlight was a brief but exciting view of an immature Golden Eagle, a just reward for an arduous climb through the chestnut wood at Agiasos.

Day 7: Found us on the Goat Pit track, Upper East River where we had spent some time the previous evening searching for Barred Warbler and a "suspect" report of Olive-tree Warbler. From there we scoured the Napi Valley adding Hawfinch and finished the afternoon at the headland of Aghios Stephanos where we found Sardinian Warbler. A sleeping Eurasian Scops-owl ended the day's outings.

Day 8: A return to the Inland Lake on the morning of day eight held us spellbound with its magical setting and rounded off a superb week of top quality bird-watching.

In addition to our list a detailed and accurate description of a Spur-winged Plover by Jill was a fly-over sighting missed by the rest of the group along the East River. A report of this species on the same day came from the salt pans near Achladeri thus confirming Jill's sighting. We set off for home furnished with some life long, wonderful memories and a good bird list to boot, a testament to the excellence of Lesvos, the birding Jewel of the Aegean.
